Now the time has come for mo - ving on, — the years have past and now they're gone. Just me mo - ries. — Just me - mo - ries — of the good times, just me - mo - ries — of the sad times, but now it's time for slow - ing down, for ta-king it ea - sy and play - ing a - round, with all the things you've al - ways wan - ted to do, with all the things you've al - ways wan - ted to do. But ne - ver had the time. So it's ear - ly to rise, don't laze a - bout, try and stay heal - thy, get out and a-bout.    Wor-king in the gar-den or    in your glass house,    try and stay heal - thy    get    out and a - bout.

Out in the car — for a    lei-sure-ly drive,    look-ing at the sce-ne-ry as    you pass by, —    when some-thing ex-ci - ting there    cat-ches your eye, —    then it's    out with your ca - mera, click, click and a sigh. Then in the eve - ning down by the fire, wat-ching the tel - ly till you feel tired, then it's ear-ly to bed with a book for a whlie. Now this is re-tire - ment li-ving in style.

Now this is re - tire - ment li - ving in style.
